

My Name is Andrew R. Ertl, my area of research for project number two as well as project number three is the affect that social networking sites have on the teenage youth and how it effects their relationships with their own peers. The specific research question I have chosen to write about being, does the use of social networking positively or negatively affect the way teenagers react with children in face to face relations, will be a very tough topic to fully understand without years and years of studies but in order to get a grasp on the information one must first interview both researches as well as the first-hand child care workers. The person I plan on interviewing for further research and expert insight is Professor O'Neal-Moffitt. Professor Moffit studied neuro surgery and has years of expertise on the brain and how the brain can affect the behavior as well as behavior amongst one's on peers. The reason I would like to do my research paper on this particular subject is because my mother is a preschool teacher and even in her school with all the younger children she has noticed a huge impact on the social development and being able to speak and make friends as children. Along with professor Moffitt I plan to interview a few child care professionals from local daycares or schools. I know that having more than one interview subject will be more time consuming and harder work but I feel as if the result will be of much greater quality because of it.